
Who is Served by the San Francisco Department of Public Health, CBHS

Mental Health Services in San Francisco are offered under the San Francisco Mental Health Plan. All San Francisco Medi-Cal beneficiaries are automatically members of the San Francisco Mental Health Plan. Healthy Families and Healthy Workers members of the San Francisco Health Plan are also SFMHP members. In addition, the SFMHP recognizes the public mental health system's role as a safety net for San Francisco residents who lack insurance coverage or the means to cover the cost of mental health care. San Francisco has opted to provide a single Mental Health Plan with the same services offered to Medi-Cal beneficiaries and indigent San Francisco residents.

What Services are provided?

Consumers may access behavioral health services by calling the San Francisco Behavioral Health Access Center, using the local or toll-free Central Access phone numbers (255-3737 or 1-888-246-3333) or TDD Access line (1-888-484-7200) or by walking into any of our many clinics. Consumers have access to a comprehensive array of community-based services, including but not limited to:

- Information and referral services.
- Prevention services.
- A full range of voluntary behavioral health services for children, families, TAY, adults and older adults, including self-help, peer support, outpatient, case management, medication support, social rehabilitation, vocational rehabilitation, day treatment, dual diagnosis treatment, substance abuse services, supported housing, residential care, transitional residential treatment, sub-acute residential treatment, and crisis residential treatment.
- 24-hour crisis services.
- Involuntary assessment, inpatient hospitalization, and long-term care services for individuals found to be a danger to themselves or others, or who are gravely disabled due to a psychiatric problem.

Outside of our county network of services, the State of California's Fee-for-Service Medi-Cal program continues to offer some services to Medi-Cal beneficiaries that have been "carved out" of County mental health plans. These include substance abuse services; private psychologist and psychiatrist services for individuals who have both Medi-Cal and Medicare; and services for individuals with cognitive and organic brain disorders.

Mental health services delivered by primary care providers are not covered by SFMHP, but these services may be covered either through the Fee-for-Service Medi-Cal program or one of the two health plans for those enrollees.

The Sixth Street Self-Help Center, a program of Hospitality House, is a community drop-in center that provides a range of socialization and wellness services for people in the community using a peer-based, self-help, harm reduction model. The Center is low-threshold, has no criteria for entry, and allows people to access services as they are ready and able to do so. Services provided include peer counseling, individual case management, and support groups addressing a multitude of issues including mental health, substance abuse, employment, medical care, housing, legal issues and other barriers to stability and health. Socialization services include drop-in social activities both for the general community and specific to older adults. The program's case management component provides support and linkage to housing access and treatment for behavioral health issues, benefits and entitlement support, legal assistance, medical care, employment and other resources as necessary.

The Community Mental Health Worker Certificate (CMHC) at City College of San Francisco is a 16 unit program based on the wellness and recovery model in mental health. The curriculum is designed to train a diverse group of front-line health workers to provide culturally responsive mental health and recovery services in San Francisco. The program is focused on engaging individuals with lived experience, their family members, field practitioners, and other interested persons and communities. It is comprised of courses that promote the development of skills needed to become gainfully employed as a mental health worker and enhance the knowledge base of those already employed. As part of their education, students will complete an internship with a local agency serving consumers of mental health.

*The Drug Overdose Prevention and Education (DOPE) Project is a team committed to reducing the number of overdose deaths in San Francisco by providing education and access to naloxone. The DOPE Project also advocates for local, state and national policy change that seeks to increase awareness about drug overdose and expand access to life-saving overdose prevention programs. The DOPE Project provides naloxone at over 20 sites per month in SF. We also offer basic or comprehensive trainings on overdose for staff, residents, and clients in SRO hotels, shelters, jails, treatment programs, and other community settings. The training can be modified to meet your needs. Trainings for agencies funded by the City and County of San Francisco and trainings for drug users and their friends and family are provided free of charge. We teach: *Commonly used prescription and street drugs *Overdose risks and prevention messages What causes an overdose (both stimulant and depressant overdoses are covered)

*The Latino Commission (TLC) has been providing bilingual/bicultural residential, aftercare, and outpatient substance abuse treatment services for Latinos/as in San Mateo County since 1991, and in San Francisco since 1999. As part of their continuum, TLC provides substance abuse services through Casa Ollin, a sober living facility for men with wrap around substance abuse treatment services provided off-site. The Latino Commission honors Latino values and utilizes a family-centered approach that integrates the concepts of conocimiento (self-awareness), respeto (respect for others) and confianza (mutual trust) to create an environment supportive of recovery. Off-site services include individual, group and family counseling, specialized educational classes, employment readiness, relapse prevention, alumni groups, exercise classes, and computer labs. Ollin is contracted for eight (8) beds at any one time in FY 06/07. For Prop. 36, Drug Court, and BASN-funded programs, access to treatment is controlled by the courts. The court system independently monitors these programs and conducts its own program reviews based on data collected by the CBHS Billing Information System (BIS).*

Client referrals come from targeted DPH mental health sites. A Legal Assistant contacts the client or caseworker to set up an intake appointment with the Attorney/Advocate. Clients will sign various representation documents. The Attorney/Advocate will contact SSA to secure a protective filing date. The Attorney/Advocate will explain how the application process works. If the client does not qualify for SSI due to immigration status, we will determine their eligibility for Cash Assistance Program for Immigrants. The Attorney/Advocate will represent clients through all administrative levels. Once a client's case is won and all benefits are in effect, program staff will advise clients on future issues that may affect benefits. After this final review, the client's file will be closed.
